NEWS WORTH SHARING.

MPP's ex-staffer claims she's being replaced by intern

Employment. Student's complaint to province a sign of widespread frustration with unpaid labour

University student Samantha Bokma said she was surprised when her job with Tory MPP Rod Jackson ended suddenly in August — she had expected to stay on part-time as his constituency assistant as she had during the last school year

It was a good front-line job for a political-science major: answering phones and doing intake interviews with constituents looking for help. The 22-year-old said she helped write some of Jackson's monthly newspaper articles.

"But then they told me they weren't going to renew my contract because they didn't have enough in the budget," said the fourth-year student at Laurentian University's Barrie campus. She resigned the next day to look for new part-time work.

So she was alarmed a week later to see an ad for what looked like her replacement — without pay.

"The duties described in the posting are pretty much what I did for pay," said Bokma, 22, who filed a complaint Tuesday with Ontario's Labour Ministry, arguing it is illegal for an employer to replace a paid worker with an unpaid intern.

Her complaint is the latest in a wave of criticism about unpaid interns, with some suing for wages and groups like the Ontario Undergraduate Student Alliance calling for tighter enforcement and even an anonymous whistle-blower hotline or website.

At Queen's Park Tuesday, Jackson challenged some of Bokma's claims, saying her charge that she is being replaced by an unpaid person "is patently untrue." One of the Barrie jobs moved to Toronto, he said, and the Barrie office is looking for a "volunteer" now to act as receptionist and handle some correspondence.

Exploitation?

Unpaid internships have been "popping up all over the economy because the law is very murky," said Alastair Woods, chair of the Canadian Federation of Students Ontario. He said too many students are being exploited through internships that are little more than free labour.

Leafs fan charged with indecent exposure

Police have charged a man with committing indecent exposure — while wearing a Toronto Maple Leafs jersey with his name on it.

The fan approached a group of women at 2:35 p.m. Monday at the Kennedy TTC station, brushed up against them, and then sat down on a bench behind them and allegedly committed what police simply called "an indecent act."

Charged with an indecent act and failure to comply with probation is Nardeo Samlall, 47, of Toronto. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

George Smitherman's husband missing

Toronto police say the husband of former Ontario health minister George Smitherman has gone missing. Police say Christopher Peloso, 39, was last seen Monday at 4 p.m. near Davenport Road and Bathurst Street. Police describe Peloso as white, five-foot-eight and 150 pounds with brown eyes and short, light-brown hair. Police are concerned for his safety.

Anna, left, and Viktoria, who did not give their last names, finished their morning classes at King George International College and headed to Sugar Beach to take in some sun in the scorching heat on Tuesday. Fall may only be 11 days away but you would never know it as near-record temperatures smothered the city in a steamy 42 C humidex factor, one of the hottest days of the year. The heat and humidity are expected to linger for a few more days, with thunderstorms predicted for Wednesday.

Mayor's office on 'honour system'

Release records? Emails and phone records from Rob Ford's office — where many staff were fired or quit — have been slow to appear since a deluge of media requests in May

The City of Toronto's freedom of information department is relying on the "honour system" to ensure that Mayor Rob Ford's office releases all relevant records to the 29 media groups, including Metro, that have submitted requests, a city spokesperson says.

"It is the honour system; a lot of this is based on trust," said Jackie DeSouza, director of strategic communication for the city.

Thousands of pages of emails and telephone records — Mayor Ford estimated 10,000 pages on his Sunday radio show — are scheduled to be released beginning Sept. 23.

An issue has arisen over emails, sent or received, that in the normal course of business are deleted. Those emails reside on the city's server and can be restored, but DeSouza said it is up to the mayor's staff to go looking for them.

Ford has not responded to interview requests on the issue, but on Sunday he slammed the media for requesting documents from his office "almost to a point of harassment."

Quoted

"For what? For what? What are they looking for? There's nothing there."
Mayor Rob Ford

"For what? For what? What are they looking for? There's nothing there," the mayor said on his radio show during a chat with co-host Coun. Doug Ford, who then accused the Toronto Star and other media of "Pravda journalism."

The Ford brothers said four staffers are unable to return constituent calls because they are working full-time on the requests. Doug Ford said they have worn out one printer and are going through ink cartridges "by the dozen."

Municipal Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act, a piece of provincial legislation, came into force in 1990 with the intent of ensuring the public has access to the inner workings of the governments they pay for. The law's first purpose, according to the legislation, follows the principle that "information should be available to the public." The act includes exemptions that protect the privacy of individuals. City staff, once they see the records, determine what is public and what is private.

Boy's room had a 'stench'

Jeffrey Baldwin inquest. Children's aid worker describes normal home — before reaching bedroom

The house in which a five-year-old boy was starved to death by his grandparents seemed normal to a children's aid worker who visited in the hours after the child died — that is, until he came upon a locked bedroom so putrid that the odour clung to his clothing.

Osiris Villalobos, an after-hours emergency worker for the Catholic Children's Aid Society, got the call the morning of Nov. 30, 2002, when Jeffrey Baldwin was pronounced dead in hospital. Villalobos first went to the Hospital for Sick Children, where he saw the boy's emaciated body. Jeffrey weighed 21 pounds — about the same as on his first birthday — when he died of bacterial bronchopneumonia as a complication of chronic starvation.

Jeffrey's grandparents, Elva Bottineau and Norman Kidman, were granted custody of the boy and his three siblings despite having previous child abuse convictions and were later convicted of second-degree murder.

Testifying Tuesday at the coroner's inquest, Villalobos said nothing seemed terribly amiss, until he'd gone into the boy's room. Other bedrooms were well-furnished, but the bedroom Jeffrey shared with a sister was filthy and had a lock on the outside. "I remember the stench ... was quite strong," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Greasing the wheels. Condo builders give $1M to Bixi

If, one day, the Bixi bike-sharing program finally arrives in neighbourhoods outside the downtown core, it may come courtesy of a downtown councillor and downtown developers.

Playing infrastructure Santa Claus, Coun. Kristyn Wong-Tam has persuaded three companies planning highrise condos in booming Ward 27, Toronto Centre-Rosedale, to put a total of $1 million toward the expansion Bixi says is desperately needed. The city now has 80 Bixi stations; the $1 million could pay for about 20 more.

The developers — Canderel, DiamondCorp and Lanterra — agreed to contribute in exchange for permission to create fewer parking spaces than city rules require.

Wong-Tam's model could help secure Bixi's future.

At present, it plods along on unsteady ground: the Toronto operation is saddled with a $3.9 million debt, it can't afford to make the service payments, and Mayor Rob Ford says the program is "a failure" that should be allowed to vanish.

Taxpayers are on the hook for the debt in any case, and the transportation department has confidentially recommended that council approve a city takeover.

Men more likely to get sick: Study

Men are more likely to develop physical illness than women, concludes a study by researchers at St. Michael's Hospital.

Ontario men were 14 per cent more likely to be diagnosed with asthma, diabetes, hypertension and/or chronic obstructive pulmonary disease during a 10-year period, starting in 2000, according to findings published in the Journal of Epidemiology and Community Health.

Researchers analyzed data from the Institute of Clinical Evaluative Sciences and Stats-Can's Canadian Community Health Survey. The health status of more than 15,000 patients was studied.

"Women tend to go to the doctor more often and men tend not to seek care as much," said lead author Flora Matheson, explaining one likely reason for the findings.

Pot can trigger psychosis in those prone to it: Study

A national study on pot use and psychosis released by the Schizophrenia Society of Canada (SSC) on Tuesday shows the drug can trigger and worsen psychosis in young people already prone to the psychiatric disorder.

The research is part of an SSC project funded by Health Canada that aims to give young people pause before they light their first joint.

"Hopefully it'll inform kids as to whether or not to use cannabis based on a knowledge of their family's (mental-health) history," explained SSC CEO Chris Summerville.

"Does marijuana specifically in and by itself cause a mental illness? No. But does it make your risk greater? Yes."

Summerville said past research has shown young people who are already vulnerable to psychosis are four to seven times more likely to become ill.

Three killed in unexplained helicopter crash

Three people are dead after a Canadian Coast Guard helicopter crashed in Arctic waters during a routine patrol to check ice conditions.

The helicopter had been stationed on the icebreaker Amundsen, which was sailing through M'Clure Strait in the western Arctic as part of a regular program of scientific study.

Mario Pelletier, the coast guard's assistant commissioner, said weather conditions at the time of the crash Monday were good. The accident occurred during daylight.

All three who died were wearing safety equipment at the time, Pelletier said.

U.S. leader advocates diplomacy but insists he will 'be ready to respond' if it fails

U.S. President Barack Obama made an impassioned pitch to Americans on Tuesday night to support his push to punish Syria for purportedly gassing its own citizens, assuring a war-weary nation that a military strike is necessary because "this is not a world we should accept."

"When dictators commit atrocities, they depend upon the world to look the other way until those horrifying pictures fade from memory," Obama said in a televised address from the White House.

The president took to the airwaves amid hopes that a diplomatic solution is at hand, one engineered by Russia, a frequent U.S. antagonist and Syrian ally. Bashar Assad's regime said it's accepted Russia's proposal to place its chemical weapons under international control for dismantling.

Obama said he'd asked Congress to postpone a vote on authorizing a military strike as Secretary of State John Kerry heads to Geneva on Thursday to meet with his Russian counterpart.

But the U.S. is still insisting it might act if Syria drags its feet on handing over its chemical weapons — and Obama's White House address was meant to explain his reasoning to a deeply skeptical public.

25% of men in six Asian countries have raped: Study

About one in four men in some parts of Asia admitted raping a woman, according to the first large studies of rape and sexual violence. About one in 10 admitted raping a woman who was not their partner.

In the new research, male interviewers surveyed more than 10,000 men in Bangladesh, China, Cambodia, Indonesia, Sri Lanka and Papua New Guinea.

"It's clear violence against women is far more widespread in the general population than we thought," said Rachel Jewkes of South Africa's Medical Research Council, who led the two studies.

The papers were published online in Lancet Global Health. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Religious symbol ban pitched to Quebecers

'Charter of Values.' Details met with swift, fervent condemnation from political figures

Quebec would become the only jurisdiction in North America to impose a sweeping ban on religious clothing for public employees, including at schools, hospitals and courthouses, under a "Charter of Values" whose details were released Tuesday.

If adopted, the plan would apply to hijabs, kippas, turbans and large crucifixes worn by religious public servants.

It would impose a career-or-faith dilemma on judges, police, and prosecutors; public daycare workers; teachers and school employees; hospital workers; municipal personnel; and employees at state-run liquor stores and the auto-insurance board.

The early reaction suggests the plan will not pass in the current legislature in its present form, which leaves two likely outcomes: it will either be watered down for adoption now or kept intact for later use as an election issue when the Parti Quebecois seeks a majority government.

The minister responsible for the plan presented it as a guarantor of equality within a secular state.

"The time has come to unite us around clear values and common rules," said minister Bernard Drainville. "Quebec is increasingly a multi-ethnic, multi-religious society. This is a great source of richness. It's also why we need clear rules."

The plan released Tuesday stems from the pro-independence party's election platform a year ago and from a longer-term shift toward identity-politics populism.

The details were swiftly slammed by much of the political class.

The federal government announced that it will seek the advice of the Department of Justice and then head to court if the proposal is deemed to violate fundamental rights. Both main Montreal mayoral candidates also vigorously condemned the idea.

'We need clear rules'

Plan appears inconsistent

The enormous crucifix on the property above Montreal's Mount Royal will be spared. So will the cross that looms above the legislative chamber. The PQ's logic is that Quebec has a heritage to protect.

Minister Bernard Drainville grappled with questions about other inconsistencies.

Would elected officials be subject to these rules? No, he replied; voters have a right to choose their representative. That means Quebecers could elect a premier with a hijab — who would then force her employees to remove theirs.

Small testicles? He might be dad material

Study of 70 men. Emory University researchers find that subjects with smaller 'assets' more likely to provide hands-on care

Men with smaller testicles appear to be better fathers to toddlers, according to new research. They are more likely to be involved in hands-on care, anthropologists at Emory University have found.

Their research, published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, also found that smaller testicular volumes correlate with more nurturing-related brain activity in fathers as they look at photos of their children.

Previous research shows lower levels of testosterone in men correlate with greater paternal involvement and higher levels with divorce and polygamy. The study included 70 fathers who had a child between 1 and 2.

Landmark ruling. Google went too far in collecting private data: U.S. court

Lawyers suing Google for enabling its camera-carrying vehicles to collect emails and Internet passwords while photographing neighbourhoods for the search giant's Street View maps look forward to resuming their case now that a U.S. court has ruled in their favour.

The Court of Appeals in San Francisco said Tuesday that Google went far beyond listening to accessible radio communication when they drew information from inside people's homes.

"The payload data transmitted over unencrypted Wi-Fi networks that was captured by Google included emails, usernames, passwords, images, and documents," wrote the panel. Marc Rotenberg, of the Electronic Privacy Center, called it "a landmark decision for Internet privacy."

iPhone. Apple covers high, low ends with dual launch

Apple's latest iPhones will come in a bevy of colours and two distinct designs, one made of plastic and the other that aims to be "the gold standard of smartphones" and reads your fingerprint.

Apple unveiled the latest iPhone models, available on Sept. 20 in Canada and many other countries, during an event at its Cupertino, Calif., headquarters.

The lower-cost iPhone 5C will be available in five colours — green, blue, yellow, pink and white. It has a four-inch retina display and is powered by Apple's A6 chip.

The second phone, the 5S, is "the most forward-looking phone we have ever created," said Phil Schiller, senior vice-president at Apple. It will come in silver, gold and "space grey" and run a new A7 chip that's up to twice as fast as the A6.

Apple also said its next mobile operating system, iOS 7, will be available as a free download on Sept. 18.

Open telecom industry to foreign players, Bell CEO says

Foreign investment restrictions should be lifted for big telecom companies to allow the market to decide how many wireless competitors Canada can support, Bell CEO George Cope said Tuesday.

"There's nothing to be afraid of. Bring the competition on," he told the annual BMO media and telecom conference.

Big telecoms such as Bell, Telus and Rogers are restricted under federal rules from being more than 33-per-cent foreign-owned, while small players with less than 10-per-cent market share have no limits.

The change in rules were a move by the federal government to increase competition in the sector. "The capital markets are efficient. They will determine whether or not Canada will have two, three, four or five competitors — period," Cope said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Income gap in U.S. hits record

The income gap between the richest one per cent and the rest of America widened to a record last year. The top one per cent of U.S. earners collected 19.3 per cent of household income in 2012, their largest share in Internal Revenue Service figures going back a century. U.S. income inequality has been growing for almost three decades.

RAPE NOT ONE OF THE THREE R'S

JUST SAYIN'

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

So much for higher education.

Here's what school spirit sounds like in 2013: "Y is for your sister"; "O is for oh-so-tight"; "U is for underage"; "N is for no consent" and "G is for go to jail."

That now-infamous rape chant was an integral part of Frosh Week at the UBC Sauder School of Business and (a similar version at) Saint Mary's University in Halifax this year, and who knows where else — a version was featured in Yale's hallowed Ivy League halls a couple of years ago.

Make no mistake, this chant was led by student leaders. Apparently, that's what "student leader" means. Someone who will lead your kids down the garden path and make them think that raping female children is just frosh hijinks, along with chugging quarts of beer or setting fire to your underpants.

So parents, you might ask your own freshmen what's on their frosh agenda. Not that they'll tell you, if this is any indication of what they're up to.

You might not believe it if you hadn't seen the video of fresh-faced young men AND women gleefully joining the chant at Saint Mary's. Thanks to social media, there aren't as many dark corners as there used to be. Or, more accurately, the corners are still dark; they're just more likely to be exposed.

The grown-ups allegedly in charge at UBC and Saint Mary's are behaving like deer caught in the headlights. Applying feverish damage control: Lots of public declarations of chagrin, frosh week funding cuts, inquiries and demands for the resignations of the bozos responsible. We'll give them the benefit of the doubt, but let's not be naïve. At Saint Mary's at least, the chant is a tradition. It's been going on for 10 years.

They're all so surprised the student body has fleas. Maybe it's an honest surprise, not just a butt-covering surprise, but they're too quick, IMHO, to characterize the rape chant as an aberration; something wicked that crept in the back door that somehow hijacked otherwise morally-upright kids.

This from the Sauder school dean Robert Helsley: "I couldn't believe it. It's so inconsistent with everything we try to teach our students, and inconsistent with our student body. They are incredibly bright, energetic young people who want to make a positive contribution to society."

Right. Campus Jungle 101: Who wants to be the Lord of the Flies?

Let me put this to every member of the student body: You're only as strong as your weakest link. If you dismiss this as the work of a few harmless troglodytes, just remember that's your sister they're braying about.

Alpine park turns into water world

For one month of the year in the Alps, a green meadow is transformed into a underwater world by the melting snow of the mountains.

At the Green Lake in Tragoess, Austria, visitors trade hiking boots for scuba diving gear to explore the flooded park. Marc Henauer from Perly, Switzerland, visited the park with his wife and snapped the mesmerizing views of the area.

METRO

Photographer's view

"It felt like I was swimming in a magical world — it was so beautiful. Swimming over the green grass, rocks and trees, it was like being in a fairy tale."

Marc Henauer, 39, scuba diver and photographer from Perly, Switzerland

Awesome thaw

- Lake in depth. Twelve metres of water is how deep the Green Lake becomes after snow thaws and water submerges the surrounding grass, trees and park benches. In the autumn and winter the lagoon in the park is normally only one metre deep.
- Green water. The lake's distinctive green hue is the result of the chlorophyll-rich grass and foliage.

While in France a lake turns red

This Austrian water park is not the only unusual yet natural lake phenomenon in Europe.

A lake in Camargue in southern France turns red thanks to an interaction between the water's high salt content and microorganisms. Salt-loving micro-algae called Dunaliella salina feed on the crystals, producing a reddish pink pigment.

So the curtain was lifted on the newest iPhone Tuesday, which means the iPhone users among us are looking at our still-amazing pieces of technology with at least a little disdain. Rekindle that old flame with some new games.

Giant Boulder Of Death:

Somewhat surprisingly, Adult Swim has become one of the App Store's most dependable publishers, a streak that continues with this destructive take on the Katamari series. Take control of a romantically jilted boulder and create as much chaos as possible while rolling toward revenge. Hugely fun and totally free. (iOS/Free)

Warhammer Quest:

A dungeon-crawler adaptation of the classic tabletop strategy game that tasks you with killing everything standing in your way as you move from settlement to settlement. Simple sounding stuff, sure, but the gameplay is deep enough to carry it. However, leaving the development of your characters at the mercy of random dice rolls can be a bit of a drag. (iOS/$4.99)

Ninjin:

The ninja rabbit simulator you've been waiting for has finally arrived. Equip yourself with an arsenal of unique weapons and lace together combos while putting the boots to a wide variety of enemies in a wildly fun side-scrolling beat 'em up. The demo is free, so what's the harm in trying? (iOS/$0.99)

@metropicks asked: Apple unveiled a new iPhone + improved iOS. What would you have liked to see in the new gadget?

@PXAbstraction: Something beyond a spec bump, an (even) uglier iOS and a fingerprint scanner everyone will turn off after a week.

@eh_c: Bundle with fedora, skinny jeans, and Ray-Bans.

@BrianBlatnicki: Simple. Give it killer battery life!!!

@paulvt: Looks like I have to wait for the iPhone6 for DNA analysis and sobriety testing.

Robert De Niro has played both spectrums of the gangster flick but he returns to the humorous side of the genre with The Family. HANDOUT

Le Cosa Nostra not so serious

New movies. From killers to killers of comedy, the gangster movie genre bends to both sides of the spectrum but never breaks

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

For every serious mafia drama like Carlito's Way, there is another film that doesn't take the La Cosa Nostra as seriously.

Gangster comedies like The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight and Some Like It Hot are early examples of gangland gigglers.

This weekend Robert De Niro, who won an Oscar playing Vito Corleone in The Godfather: Part II, and Michelle Pfeiffer, who played a gangster's moll in Scarface, team up for The Family, a darkly comedic mafia movie.

The film also features Sopranos star Dominic "Junior Soprano" Chianese and Vincent "Big Pussy" Pastore in a story about notorious crime family the Manzoni's, who find themselves relocated to Normandy, France as part of the witness protection program. Trouble is, they have some difficulty blending in with the locals.

This isn't the first time De Niro has played his tough guy image for laughs. In Analyze This and its sequel Analyze That, he's Paul Vitti, a mob boss who suffers from panic attacks.

To help him through he hires psychiatrist Dr. Ben Sobel (Billy Crystal).

"What is my goal here?" asks the doctor. "To make you a happy, well-adjusted gangster?"

The first movie was a big hit — both commercially and critically, but the second one didn't fare as well. Roger Ebert wrote, "what seemed like a clever idea the first time feels like a retread the second."

In The Whole Nine Yards former hit man Jimmy the Tulip has trouble adapting to life on the right side of the law.

As played by Bruce Willis he's in hiding after ratting out members of Chicago's deadly Gogolak gang.

When his identity is discovered by his neighbour (Matthew Perry) Jimmy has to reluctantly revert to old habits to survive.

"It's not important how many people I've killed," he says. "What's important is how I get along with the people who are still alive."

Years before Pride and Prejudice and Zombies became an unexpected literary hit, Hollywood co-opted the marquee value of Jane Austin's name. Director Jim Abrahams of Naked Gun and Top Secret fame looked to the underworld for the inspiration of Jane Austin's Mafia.

A spoof movie that draws heavily on Martin Scorsese's Casino (and not so much on Austin's oeuvre) it marked Lloyd Bridges' last appearance on the big screen, playing a Mafia godfather.

The flick is a quick watch. It runs for a scant 84 minutes, six of which are taken up with credits.

Dobber@TIFF: A bit of Shangri-La di da

ANDREW JOHN VIRTUE DOBSON
metronews.ca/TIFF
dobbernationlloves.com
follow @metrotoronto and @dobbernation

The Shangri-La Hotel is sure to be one of the hottest spots to see and be seen during TIFF this year. This Asian luxury hotel import offers exemplary service, relaxing ambiance and top notch sips and nibbles. East meets West at University and Adelaide as The Shangri-La, Chef David Chang's Momofuku and Zhang Huan's sculpture The Rising raise the level of Asian obsessions to a climax in the heart of T.O.

Room details

The hotel's premier "room with a view" is The Fazioli Suite, which measures 630 square feet and is filled with piano-centric decor. The stunning room features two bathrooms covered in white marble with heated floors, Bulgari pampering products, stunning views overlooking University Avenue via floor to ceiling windows, a walk-in closet, spacious lounge, deep soaking tub with comfort jets and two LCD TVs.

Dining

Chef Damon Campbell gets creative in the Bosk kitchen offering a signature Nova Scotia Scallop ($17) served with avocado, hon-shimiji mushrooms, crunchy rice and a toasted sesame ginger dressing. The dish embodies The Shangri-La's iconic whimsy: Asian inspirations paired with top notch Canadian ingredients.

Bar

Mixologist Mathieu Chabot keeps busy behind The Bar located in between The Shang's Lobby Lounge and Bosk. Drink lists here are creatively crafted into a wee bookshelf with individual hard covers labelled: Apertif's and Cocktails, Wine and Beer, Fortified Wines etc… Be sure to grab an iced cold Gin Basil Smash ($18) a refreshing herbaceous sipper.

TIFF/Celebrity hook

The 2013 TIFF Asian Film Summit took place at the Shangri-La Hotel on Tuesday. Keanu Reeves discussed his latest project, Man of Tai Chi. The Summit is a key element of TIFF's ongoing commitment to building bridges between Asian and western cinema.

Recommendation

Afternoon tea in The Lobby Lounge is a relaxing and indulgent experience. By far the best space in the hotel to prop yourself up on a couch and people watch. High tea service ($40 per person) includes your very own pot from a select tea list as well as a warm scone with preserves and Devon cream, dainty sandwiches and a plate full of sweets.

Gravity brings Bullock back to Earth

Interview. Actress was put through the ringer when shooting the zero gravity scenes in Alfonso Cuarón's film

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News at TIFF

Sandra Bullock had a hard time shooting the movie Gravity. CONTRIBUTED

Director Alfonso Cuarón described the process of making Gravity as "painful and gruesome" for his star Sandra Bullock.

"Bodily fluids come to mind," says Bullock. "There was blood. Blisters."

The Oscar winner plays Dr. Ryan Stone, an astronaut untethered from her space shuttle following a debris storm. Cut adrift from her ride back to earth and her space partner (George Clooney) she floats through the inky darkness until she discovers the will and a way to survive.

Initially the filmmakers considered using the "vomit comet" — a plane that allows you to achieve weightlessness — to create the zero gravity of space. When that idea was rejected new technology was built to facilitate the film's thrilling and chilling outer space scenes.

"There were contraptions that took 20 minutes to get into," says Bullock, "that harnessed you and locked you into something that you had no control over once it started."

She describes long takes in really uncomfortable positions strung up like a marionette on a 12-wire system, an office chair on a hydraulic lift, cameras that flew toward her and the frustration of being "attached to something and not being able to use your body the way you're used to."

"It was something completely new," she says. "It was more like being part of Cirque du Soleil than what we had been used to as actors."

The technical issues of the job were physically challenging — "I love it," she says, "but I didn't love it while I was doing it."

But she adds that the shoot, emotionally, was "the Wild West."

"Most of it was frustration and trying not to take your anger out on Alfonso. I had no one else listening to me but him so he got the brunt of it. But it was my frustration with myself because I didn't have all the tools I was used to, to get me where I wanted to go.

"I missed being in the sun. I missed being with my son. I missed being with people and having communication. It was lonely. Luckily I got to get out of it at the end of the day and appreciate the sunshine or my boy."

In the end the arduous shoot was worth it. There's Oscar buzz surrounding Bullock's performance and she even got the thumbs up from real life spaceman Chris Hadfield

"Sandra Bullock was great," he tweeted. "I'd fly with her."

A romantic, supernatural psychic and a beat poet

Interview. Daniel Radcliffe talks about having three films at TIFF and what inspired him about the Allen Ginsberg role

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News at TIFF

Daniel Radcliffe stormed into TIFF this year with three very different films — romantic comedy The F Word, the darker Horns and Kill Your Darlings, in which he plays beat poet Allen Ginsberg. We sat down to chat with him about playing Ginsberg.

I can't believe you couldn't find a fourth film to squeeze into TIFF. That's just lazy.
I know, I'm really disappointed in myself (laughs). The thing I'm kind of most pleased with about the three that are in is that they're all so different.

Daniel Radcliffe has a full TIFF slate.
THE CANADIAN PRESS

You've developed a great collaborative relationship with your Kill Your Darlings director, John Krokidas.
It's been one of the joys of doing this film. You know, I've worked with loads of directors, and he's the best director of actors I have worked with. Like, he got a performance from me that I didn't know that I necessarily had in me.

What intrigued you most about Allen Ginsberg?
What I find interesting about him is that his confidence is so much intellectual and internal. In his inner life, he is so f—ing confident and so smart, and he is that, but that doesn't translate into his outer life, into his interactions with people socially. So when he sees Lucian, here's this charismatic — beautiful, obviously — but charismatic and charming, funny, can relate to anyone, can talk to anyone, isn't intimidated by any social situation, and just falls for him. Because you often, I think, fall in love with characteristics in people that you don't have in yourself or that you want in yourself, and that's who he was.

Jane Lynch. PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

There will be no Glee in Lynch's divorce

Apparently Jane Lynch's divorce from Lara Embry will be an expensive one, as the Glee star is reportedly being asked to pay more than $90,000 per month in spousal support to Embry for an annual total of $1.1 million, according to TMZ.

A document filed last week lists monthly expenses including $12,000 for entertainment, $5,000 for charitable donations and $4,500 for meals at restaurants, though $59,909 of the amount requested is meant to go toward "unknown" expenses. The pair separated earlier this summer after three years of marriage. Lynch seems OK with the development, at least, telling a photographer outside a West Hollywood café,

"I think it's the law, isn't it? I think it's the law, so I go with the law."

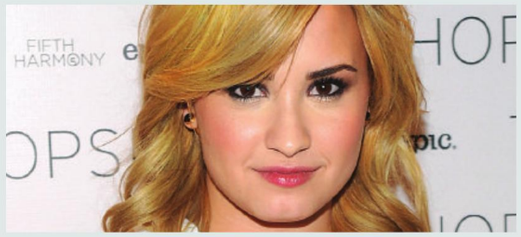
Demi Lovato's all a-Twitter this year with two book deals

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca



Demi Lovato's tweets are being turned into a book, the Macmillan imprint Feiwel and Friends announced on Monday.

"Staying Strong: 365 Days a Year will be a powerful 365 day collection of Demi's most honest, brave and hopeful insights," the press release states.

"Here are her own words, with quotes that inspire her, as well as personal reflections and goals. This is a book for everyone, everywhere, on their own journey who need comfort, inspiration and a reason every day to stay strong."

The book will be available on Nov. 19 with a Spanish edition, titled Se Fuerte: 365 Dias Al Ano on Dec. 3.

A memoir by the singer and actress is also in the works.

Lovato is taking over all media in 2013, it seems. In addition to working on this two-book deal, she'll be judging The X Factor, as well as appearing on Glee this fall. The singer and actress will play a love interest for ex-cheerleader Santana.

"She's playing my love interest, so I'm very, very excited about that. We get to sing a song together," Naya Rivera, who plays Santana, told MTV.

Franco flattered by gay jokes at roast

James Franco wasn't bothered by all the gay jokes hurled his way at his recent Comedy Central roast. In fact, he welcomes them.

"Bring on the gay jokes," he tells the Daily Beast. "Because these aren't insults at all. I don't even care if people think I'm gay, so it was like, awesome! I mean, I wish I was… I wish I was gay."

One of the towering plant sculptures that covered the grounds of the Montreal Botanical Gardens. Cyclists who want to ride the P'tit Train du Nord rail trail can catch a bicycle shuttle outside Montreal at Saint-Jerome. R.M. GREEN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

I would not bike 3,000 miles

Just to be the person who did the entire corridor. You're better off choosing a smaller chunk when cycling Quebec's La Route Verte Quebec's 3,000-mile bicycle network, La Route Verte, has attracted plenty of buzz since National Geographic named it the world's top cycling destination in 2007. But who's got time for 3,000 miles? Most cyclists will want to plan a trip for a few days or a week, and that takes, well, legwork.

That legwork unfolded over months and included scrolling through goofily translated French-to-English web pages in search of useful information. It culminated with rides on two distinct routes in late summer: the P'tit Train du Nord (Little Train of the North) rail trail, running for more than 160 km north of Montreal; and a staggeringly beautiful stretch along the St. Lawrence River from Quebec City east toward the Gaspe Peninsula. This route is also a compelling trip by car.

Route Verte, or green way, is a carefully managed network of off-road trails, dedicated bike lanes and quiet country roads, sometimes linked by moderately busy roadways with decent shoulders — nothing too hair-raising. Its routes have shuttle services, and accredited establishments are obliged to offer healthy, hearty food, safe storage for bikes and access to repairs and shelter. Inspectors come around to check on that. It's about as close to being coddled as self-supported cycling gets.

The green way is the easy way

It's about as close to being coddled as self-supported cycling gets.

The P'tit Train du Nord journey went down smooth and easy — call it the milk chocolate dip. About half is paved; the rest is fine-crushed stone. Towns pop up where you need them as you sweep past placid lakes, rushing waters and mixed stands of hardwood and softwood forest.

The St. Lawrence is more intense, an explosion of garden flowers, wildflowers, dramatic river vistas, commanding churches in storybook villages and gastronomic adventures. Call it the Classique Noir dip of the ice cream shop.

In both areas, it's hit and miss trying to converse in English in small towns or rural areas, though easier in cities and at tourist attractions. But efforts by visitors to try even a bit of tortured French are welcomed.

So is Quebec worthy of the world's best biking destination?

The Little Train of the North pulls its weight as an enticing bike trail, probably better than the St. Lawrence for families and anyone who doesn't want to mess with a single car while on the bike. For American cyclists, though, there are equally terrific rail trails that may be closer to home.

Route Verte 1, however, is surely in a league of its own. Its farther reaches will be what draw cyclists back, with a pit stop, of course, for ice cream, if the poutine do the trick first.

While marijuana is still illegal in Jamaica, increasingly vocal advocates say that Jamaica could give its struggling economy a boost by taking advantage of the fact the island is nearly as famous for its marijuana as it is for beaches.

DAVID MCFADDEN/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pothead paradise

Jamaica. Marijuana farmers hope to cash in on legalization trend with a twist on wine tours

Napa and Sonoma have their wine tours, and travellers flock to Scotland to sample the fine single malt whiskies. But in Jamaica, farmers are offering a different kind of trip for a different type of connoisseur.

Call them ganja tours: smoky, mystical journeys to some of the island's hidden cannabis plantations, where pot tourists can sample such strains as "purple kush" and "pineapple skunk."

The tours pass through places like Nine Mile, the tiny hometown of reggae legend, and famous pot-lover, Bob Marley. Here, in Jamaica's verdant central mountains, dreadlocked men escort curious visitors to a farm where deep-green marijuana plants grow out of the reddish soil.

"This one here is the original sinsemilla, Bob Marley's favourite. And this one here is the chocolate skunk. It's special for the ladies," a pot farmer nicknamed "Breezy" said as he showed off several varieties on his plot.

Similar tours are offered just outside the western resort town of Negril, where a marijuana mystique has drawn weed-smoking vacationers for decades.

An online vacation guide called Jamaicamax promises to organize ganja tours in the Negril area. But there's a caveat: First you have to smoke a marijuana "spliff" with your guide, presumably to show you are not law enforcement.

"After you smoke a spliff with us and we get to know you then we will take you on the best ganja tours in Jamaica and you'll smoke (and eat if you want) so much ganja you'll be talking to Bob Marley himself," the travel website says.

While legalization drives have scored major victories in recent months in places like Colorado and Washington state, the plant is still illegal in Jamaica, where it is known popularly as "ganja."

In fact, it has been prohibited on the island since 1913. Still, Jamaica is the Caribbean's leading supplier of pot to the U.S. and tourists often don't need to look any farther than their hotel lobby for assistance buying weed.

"The government needs to free up marijuana soon, man, because it's a natural thing; a spiritual thing," Breezy said before sticking his nose in a clump of pot plants and taking an appreciative sniff.

"And the tourists love it."

Metro World News in New York

The great escape: Karisma Hotels & Resorts' Culinary Series

Besides the white sand, turquoise water, 13 swimming pools, a beach spa overlooking the horizon and excursions to nearby cenotes all luring you to the award-winning El Dorado Royale in the Riviera Maya, another reason to book a room at the resort is their new partnership with Jackson Family Wines.

During the first week of each month, top chefs and sommeliers will fly down and create a variety of culinary experiences for guests to enjoy. These include tastings, specialty dinners and cooking classes. Another cool epicurean feature: The property includes an organic greenhouse which produces vegetables and herbs used in the dishes served. Your Instagram feed will make friends jealous with more than just sunsets and swim-up bars. karismahotels.com.

The Essex Resort & Spa's Chef in Training package

At this idyllic 18-acre property — located between the Green Mountains and Lake Champlain just outside of Burlington, Vt. — aspiring cooks can brush up on their culinary skills and pick up some new tips, techniques and recipes during one of the many hands-on classes held in the resort's Cook Academy.

Currently, the class schedule is packed with themes like making salsas, sauces and chutneys and cooking with farmers market bounty.

When not in the kitchen make sure to enjoy hot air balloon rides, golfing, hiking and fishing. essexresortspa.com.

Fan faves gone, but they'll always have the Yukon

ON THE MOVE
Loren Christie
life@metronews.ca

As the inaugural season of Amazing Race Canada comes to an action-packed close, I checked in with London, Ont. based fan favourites, Jet Black and Dave Schram, who were eliminated in the Newfoundland stretch of the challenge.

What was your favourite destination?
Dave : Yukon. It blew my mind.
Jet: The Yukon was stunning. At one point we're on a frozen lake, a short ATV ride later we're in a desert and it's all surrounded by white mountains.

Favourite challenge?
Dave: The football challenge in Mosaic Stadium. I am a huge sports fan and know what the Roughriders mean to all of Saskatchewan.
Jet: That whole leg. The RCMP challenge — people thought I would excel, but the amount of times that the London police have inspected my bed — zero. I had a lot of fun with the inspector. He was initially disappointed in me. I told him I am sorry I don't know how to fold the socks the way the Queen Mother requires.

That's just the way it goes

"The reality of Race is while you are doing it, you don't necessarily get to see much."
Jet Black

Least favourite challenge?
Jet: Eating muktuk. The thick skin was like chewing on a car tire and they were way too big to just pop in your mouth. It was a super sour, tangy, fishy mess that was not like the sushi I am used to.
Dave: Running around Chinatown in Vancouver for four hours before we switched tasks. We didn't know what to do. It was so unclear. That was an important lesson we learned, … when the going gets tough, give up!

Where would you like to go back to?
Jet: Nova Scotia. The reality of Race is while you are doing it, you don't necessarily get to see much. I had never been east of Quebec before.
Dave: Kelowna. To waterski in the Okanagan and ski Big White in the same day would be amazing.

FINALE AIRS MONDAY, SEPT. 16 ON CTV.

Proving it's cheap to eat well, deliciously, simply and healthy should be the job of a superhero. But, in the absence of her, here goes.

This soup takes mere minutes to assemble, less than 30 to simmer and provides 17 grams of protein, 78 per cent of your fibre for the day and only 350 calories per serving.

The tea biscuits round it out to a hearty meal.

It's Wonder Soup Woman!

Eat cheap (and healthy)

The past three Wednesdays, Metro's Theresa Albert has served up easy to make and healthy recipes that are perfect for families or starving students. Don't forget to look for the final recipes in the series on Sept. 18.

Ingredients

Soup
- 2 tsp butter ($0.06)
- 1 small onion, chopped ($0.88)
- 2 cups lentils ($0.98)
- 2 small red potatoes, chopped ($0.75)
- 2 carrots, chopped ($0.25)
- 1 litre broth ($2)
- 6 cups water
- 2 tsp dried basil ($0.06)
- 2 cups tomato juice ($1.25)
- 3 tbsp molasses ($0.25)
- 3/4 cup white wine – optional ($1)

Total$7.48/ per serving $0.94

Biscuits
- 1 tbsp lemon juice ($0.22)
- 2.5 cups milk ($0.66)
- 3 cups all-purpose flour ($0.50)
- 1 cup whole wheat flour ($0.25)
- 3 tbsp baking powder ($0.20)
- 1/2 tsp sea salt ($0.01)
- 1 tsp dried basil ($0.05)
- 1 cup wheat germ ($0.30)
- 1/2 cup butter ($0.50)

Total $2.44/ per serving (2 biscuits) $0.20

Soup

1. In a very large pot, heat butter over medium heat and add onions, cook 4 min to soften.

2. Stir in lentils, potatoes and carrots. Add broth and water; reduce heat to simmer 20 min. Add basil, salt, pepper, tomato juice, molasses and wine if using. Bring to simmer. Cover, simmer 5 min.

Wheat Germ and Herb Tea Biscuits

1. Preheat oven to 425. F.

2. Stir lemon juice into milk to sour.

3. Stir flours, baking powder, salt, basil and wheat germ together. Cut in butter with 2 knives and mash with a fork until the dough looks like peas. Start with 2 cups of milk to make a stiff dough and work it together into a ball. Do not over work. Add more liquid as needed.

4. Roll out and use a cookie cutter or inverted juice glass to cut small rounds.

5. Bake on a cookie sheet for 10-15 minutes until lightly browned.

GOOD FOR YOU, GOOD FOR THE PLANET.

Traditional Mediterranean eating is considered one of the healthier diets in the world for preventing chronic illnesses such as heart disease, strokes, cancer and diabetes. This diet is rich in plant-based foods such as grains, pasta and bread, as well as a colourful mix of fruits, vegetables, nuts and olive oil, plus small portions of fish, lean meat, cheese and wine. Fortunately, it also has a positive impact on the environment because, in general, a plant-focused diet offers a lower carbon, water and ecological footprint.

According to dietitian Andrea Holwegner, "This diet is easy to adopt as it consists of foods we already enjoy, like pasta. And choosing multi-grain varieties of pasta such as the popular Barilla PLUS® is especially smart because it's a source of protein, fibre and omega-3."

Barilla PLUS
THE CHOICE OF ITALY ®

Spaghetti with Basil Pesto, Asparagus and Shellfish

PREP TIME: 20 MINUTES | COOK TIME: 15 MINUTES | SERVES 4

INGREDIENTS

1 box Barilla PLUS® Spaghetti
¼ pound mussels, steamed and shelled
¼ pound clams, steamed and shelled
1 bunch asparagus, thinly sliced
3 tbsp extra virgin olive oil
¼ pound shrimp, peeled and deveined
Salt and pepper to taste
1 clove garlic
12 basil leaves
¼ cup pine nuts

PREPARATION

1. Bring a large pot of water to a boil.
2. In 2 small pots, steam the mussels and clams. Reserve broth and discard shells.
3. In a large skillet, sauté the asparagus in 1 tbsp olive oil. Season with salt and pepper.
4. Add shrimp and sauté until golden on both sides.
5. Cook pasta according to package directions.
6. While pasta is cooking, combine all dry ingredients in blender. Pulse for 10 seconds or until finely chopped.
7. Drizzle in olive oil slowly to create the pesto.
8. Add the pesto to the skillet and add the shellfish broth and a little bit of the pasta cooking water.
9. Drain pasta and toss with pesto, seafood and asparagus.

Magic of biodynamic wine

A mix of witchcraft and organic farming. But how does it taste?

ANDRÉ PROULX
Wine Expert, Newstalk 1010

Ontario has two wineries that are certified biodynamic. ISTOCK

I've said it before and I'll say it again, I don't buy into the whole "organic food superiority complex." I am mindful about what I eat and drink, but the bottom line for me is that it has to taste good.

There are two wineries in Ontario that are certified biodynamic: Southbrook and Tawse, which has been named winery of the year at the Canadian Wine Awards for three years running.

On the surface, biodynamics seems like a mix of witchcraft and organic farming. In regards to winemaking, the belief is that the health of the vine and the ultimate quality of the resulting wine depends on the health of a number of life forces — the soil, the people who work the vineyard and all the other plants and animals that are a part of the eco-system.

One of my favourite parts of this style of farming is that vineyards use sheep like farm machinery — they both prune the vines and fertilize the vineyards in one fell swoop. Once the sheep get too big, the vineyards have organic-fed lamb to sell. With regards to witchcraft, biodynamic farmers set their schedule to the lunar calendar. They tend to either soils or fruit depending on the phase of the moon.

On the surface it seems a little crazy, but I had a chance to speak to Fernando Pavon, the winemaker at Emiliana in Chile about how the moon can affect plants. He explained that the moon has an effect on water and tides, so it only makes sense that it could also affect the liquid content in fruits and plants.

While the idea of biodynamic farming is quite romantic and fascinating, the question is do the wines taste good? Let me tell you, both of Ontario's biodynamic wineries are producing wines at a consistency that is unparalleled in the province.

Wine selections

Emiliana, Tawswe and Southbrook wines are currently available in the LCBO and vintages sections.

- 2012 Emiliana Adobe Reserva Organic Sauvignon Blanc - LCBO 266049 - $12.95. Great Sauvignon Blanc that is loaded with herbacious notes and lots of lime on the finish. Great acidity that sizzles on the palette.
- 2012 Emiliana Adobe Reserva Organic Merlot - LCBO 322024 - $12.95. An exciting full-bodied red wine that has grippy tannins on the finish. Well exceeds its $13 price point.
- 2010 Tawse Growers Blend Pinot Noir - Vintages 328070 - $31.95. Very soft and easy drinking with lots of ripe cherry flavours and subtle earthiness on the finish.
- 2010 Southbrook Triomphe Cabernet Sauvignon - Vintages 193573 - $22.95. Great full-bodied red wine with raspberry and black currant, the long finish is loaded with vanilla and cocoa.

Make working from home work

MEGHAN GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

One of the greatest advantages for gen Ys entering the workforce is the increase in alternative, more flexible office environments.

Working from home is one of the biggest trends companies are incorporating into their corporate culture. There are many perks to working from home: no commute, travel expenses, or dress code policies, to name a few.

While rare, students or new grads may be given the opportunity to work partially or completely from home.

The following tips will help you make working from home a positive and productive experience:

Visit your coworkers
Set dates to go into the office and interact with your colleagues face to face. You will develop stronger relationships with your coworkers and remind them that you are more than daily emails in their inbox.

Define your work space
As a student or new grad, space may be limited, but defining an area as your "office" or "work desk" is an ideal way to work effectively at home. It will help establish a routine and keep you from getting distracted.

Keep your workspace organized
Even though your coworkers and managers might not be around, it's important to keep your work area tidy. Having a messy office space at home becomes overwhelming and distracting when trying to complete your job responsibilities.

Check in and check out
Schedule your work hours as if you were going to the office every day.

If your co-workers work from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., your hours should be similar. This establishes a healthy routine, creates effective communication channels between you and your colleagues and ensures you don't impede their productivity.

Save time by working out in your work clothes? No, but check out our tips to make it easier.

Meetings, memos, and pushups?

MEGHAN GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

Who wants to wake up an hour early or get home an hour late? Not me, and likely not you either. So, if you're having trouble fitting in your workouts before or after work, when can you?

At lunch. For most full-time employees, you'll have an hour for lunch, which gives you just enough time to get a quick workout in. Not sure if it's doable? It is. Here's how:

Get everything in order
"I'd like a half-hour workout with a side of shower time and a spinach salad please!"

Sounds like a little much right? It is possible, though, with a bit of organization. Pack your work clothes, gym gear and home-made lunch with you all in one bag so it's ready to go. This will make it easy for you to go from one thing to the next.

Intensity, intensity, intensity
Sometimes less is more! It's completely possible to have a short, intense workout if you plan your workouts beforehand. For example, if you're going to the gym three times a week on your lunch break, plan three different workouts to rotate through each day you go (on your phone, cue cards, iPod, etc.).

Who needs a gym?
If there isn't a gym close to your work, you can still get a great workout in by making use of the natural "facilities" all around you. Going for a run, walk, bike, rollerblade or even bringing a yoga mat to the park can be just as effective as hitting the gym.

Stay energized
When working out on your lunch break, it's crucial to hydrate and get the proper nutrients. First of all, working out on an empty stomach isn't healthy. Secondly, you don't want your work to be affected.

Have a small, healthy snack (yogurt, veggies and hummus, apple, etc.) before your workout and eat your lunch after to keep you on your A-game.

Come in a little earlier, leave a little later
When first getting into you lunchtime workout routine, you might take a few minutes longer than expected.

To ensure that your career isn't being affected, come in a bit early and don't hesitate to stay a bit later than normal to demonstrate your commitment to your job for your boss to see. Once you start to get your routine down pat, you should be able to balance everything just fine.

Did you know that around 20 per cent of Canada's population speak a language at home that's neither French nor English? That's nearly 6.6 million people who are comfortable interacting with others in one of more than 200 non-official languages.

Being bilingual or multilingual in a culturally diverse country like Canada can open countless doors for you while job hunting. Make those skills immediately visible on your resumé (for example, mention it in your job objective)!

Don't have another language under your belt? There's always time to learn! You could sign up for night classes, or even teach yourself via a book or computer program.

If you still need some convincing about the value of language in the workplace, then check out these five industries where a second (or third, or fourth) language can help you hatch your career:

Health care

Health care is a stable field to work in, since it's a pretty important service. Having the use of an alternate language will make you an asset to any health-care team and will also position you to work on the administrative side of things anywhere in the country.

POTENTIAL JOBS: REGISTERED NURSE, PARAMEDIC, PHARMACIST, MEDICAL RESEARCHER

Travel

Whether you're at a hotel or resort, or are up at 30,000 feet in a plane, getting away from it all can go from a relaxing idea to a frustrating experience if there are communication barriers.

Speaking multiple languages is a skill that could make you indispensable to a hospitality or travel team. Plus, the opportunity to explore new places isn't a bad job perk.

POTENTIAL JOBS: RESORT MANAGER, AIRLINE STEWARD/STEWARDESS, FRONT DESK REPRESENTATIVE

Si vous pouvez lire ceci, vous connaissez déjà les avantages du bilinguisme. ISTOCK IMAGES

Education

Since you're lucky enough to have a skill that is invaluable in many situations, why not impart some of this knowledge to those with a desire to learn it?

Education is an extremely rewarding career path. Your contributions could help someone hatch a career.

POTENTIAL JOBS: CURRICULUM SPECIALIST, ESL INSTRUCTOR, GUIDANCE COUNSELOR

Customer service

Providing customer service will be much more effective if both parties can communicate clearly.

Being bilingual or multilingual will allow you to serve a greater number of customers, which will give your company a greater scope of potential clients — something that will definitely please both your employer and your customers.

POTENTIAL JOBS: SALES CLERK, CUSTOMER SERVICE REPRESENTATIVE, HOST OR HOSTESS

Social services

Social service covers a huge range of work and includes dedicated work with those in need. In this field, it's critical to eliminate as many language barriers as possible to ensure that every client's unique needs are being met.

POTENTIAL JOBS: CHILD WELFARE WORKER, SUBSTANCE ABUSE WORKER, SOCIAL WORK ADMINISTRATOR

A job that allows you to put your bilingual or multilingual skills to work can be a rewarding and exciting direction for your career. Next time you're job hunting, pay close attention to those seeking candidates with additional language skills.

Trumbo trounces Jays in record-setting performance

Mark Trumbo, right, of the Angels is congratulated by Josh Hamilton after hitting a solo home run against the Blue Jays on Tuesday at Rogers Centre. Trumbo, who led the Angels to a 12-6 win, became the first player in team history to collect five hits and score five runs in the same game. Also on Tuesday, it was announced the Blue Jays will play a pair of pre-season games next spring at Montreal's Olympic Stadium. The Jays will host the New York Mets on March 28 to 29 in the first Major League Baseball games to be played at the stadium in 10 years. TOM SZCZERBOWSKI/GETTY IMAGES

Calgary's Colborne humbled by floods

NHL. Leafs forward returned home in June to find the city where he grew up in a desperate state

Leafs centre Joe Colborne had never seen anything like it.

A native of Calgary, he realized the extent of the damage his flood-ravaged hometown of Calgary took during a disastrous storm back in June. But when he visited the city and joined his family in bringing aid to flood victims, Colborne was at a loss for words to describe what he saw.

"I've never seen anything like it, never," Colborne said as several Leafs worked out Tuesday prior to medicals and the official opening of camp Wednesday.

"There were people, friends, whose homes were just gone, nothing there anymore. My family was helping out and you'd see people with piles of stuff just thrown out of their house to save it ... flat screen TVs, furniture, just thrown into a pile. People were crying, they'd lost everything.

"People were in canoes floating down main street. One of my friends, he was in a canoe and he forgot a cat in his apartment; his girlfriend told him to go back and get the cat, so he paddled the canoe back to get the cat, and the police flagged him down and gave him a ticket; you weren't supposed to be there."

Colborne's family home is located outside of Calgary — "on a higher piece of land" — which left them outside the damage zone, and free to help the victims.

Three months later, he has completed an eventful summer, one of several Leafs whose off-season didn't follow a routine script of relaxing and training for the upcoming season.

Colborne boosted his training regimen, focusing on leg strength. He's been able to add well over 10 pounds of muscle to his six-foot-six frame, a welcome addition to a 23-year-old kid whose speedy metabolism has prevented such gains in the past. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Leafs sign Kadri to two-year deal

Nazem Kadri will be at Toronto Maple Leafs training camp after all.

Kadri signed a two-year, $5.8-million US deal on the eve of the start of camp, ending contentious contract talks between the restricted free agent centre and the team.

Kadri enjoyed a stellar 2013, putting up 18 goals and 26 assists in 48 games during his first full NHL season.

In 99 career games, the 22-year-old Kadri has 26 goals and 37 assists. He was the No. 7 pick of the Maple Leafs in the 2009 draft after playing for the London Knights and Kitchener Rangers of the OHL.

Signing Kadri leaves one major question for the Maple Leafs: the status of restricted-free-agent defenceman Cody Franson. The 26-year-old Franson enjoyed a career year in 2013 with four goals and 25 assists. THE CANADIAN PRESS

World Cup qualifying

Italy, Netherlands advance to Brazil

Italy and the Netherlands became the first European teams to qualify for the 2014 World Cup but Germany's passage to the finals in Brazil was delayed despite also winning on Tuesday.

Mario Balotelli's 55th-minute penalty secured a 2-1 win for Italy over the Czech Republic to seal first place in Group B, while Robin van Persie's second-half double in a 2-0 win at Andorra guaranteed the Dutch top spot in Group D. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto FC invests in big, Bright, future

Soccer. Powerful Nigerian gives coach Nelsen big body to work with in front of opposing goal

His Nigerian first name is Chinedu, which means "God guides us." His surname, Dike, translates into "strength."

But in North America he goes by his English middle name, Bright.

Toronto FC manager Ryan Nelsen expects Bright Dike to live up to his last name, promising the newly acquired forward will cause havoc in front of goal.

It's easy to see why. Listed at six-foot-one and 220 pounds, Dike is a load.

Asked to describe his style of play, the 26-year-old Dike pointed to his body.

"If you haven't seen me play, you can look at me and just tell I'm big, strong, athletic, fast," he said matter-of-factly. "(An) aerial threat as well. You can look for me to play a No. 9 role and help this team out. Hopefully I'm another weapon he (Nelsen) can use."

Bright Dike with the Portland Timbers last October in Vancouver.
GETTY IMAGES FILE

Dike's voice is as big as his body, with a booming sound that would do well on CNN voiceovers.

Dike is ready to see action Wednesday against the visiting Chicago Fire (10-11-5), although Nelsen says he will ease in the new forward given his comeback from February knee surgery and lack of preparation time in Toronto.

"Bright brings something that we just don't have, in terms of the pace and the power," Nelsen said Tuesday after practice.

Toronto also got a first-round pick in 2015 and allocation money in shipping Argentine striker Maximiliano Urruti and a 2013 international roster spot to the Portland Timbers. Toronto will also get 20 per cent of a future transfer fee if Portland sells Urruti.

"It's a really good deal for us," said Nelsen.

Nelsen is short on offensive weapons and it has shown in the standings.

Toronto FC (4-13-10) has scored 23 goals, which ranks 18th in the 19-team league.

The 2014 Kia Cadenza

ALL PHOTOS WHEELBASEMEDIA.COM

Review. Kia ditches its features list to finally dote on the all-importants like style, feel and personality

MALCOLM GUNN

It's obvious that picking a new Cadenza is supposed to be a no-brainer decision. Not that you won't want to examine it thoroughly before your purchase, but with a generous amount of built-in luxury and convenience hardware/software, picking your colour scheme just might be the only scheming you have to do.

The Cadenza's introduction is a significant one for Hyundai's subsidiary. The brand that once sold mainly small cars and wagons to younger, first-time buyers, has gradually expanded its lineup to include a variety of smartly styled vehicles that look nothing like their Hyundai counterparts.

The Cadenza is a prime example of this philosophy. It's similar in size to, and shares the same stretched architecture as the Hyundai Azera, a model sold only in the U.S. However Kia design boss Peter Schreyer (a rock star in the automotive design world) has taken a totally unique approach in shaping the Cadenza's sheetmetal. His efforts have yielded a subtle-looking sedan that conveys a greater sense of class and polish than the Azera with its trendier looks. Clearly the Cadenza is Kia's attempt to gain favour with more mature buyers who place pampering content on their must-have list.

Pushing the starter button engages a 3.3-litre V6 with 293 horsepower and 255 pound-feet of torque and connected to that V6 is a six-speed automatic transmission with steering-wheel-mounted paddle shifters.

Although the Cadenza seems to be geared for older buyers, the car's "sport-tuned" suspension is somewhat firmer than that of some of its competitors, but still returns a good ride without a lot of clattering from underneath. The electric power-steering rack is responsive and tends to skitter around the highway much less than in some other rides with similar tech.

The base Cadenza with its out-the-door price of $39,400 (less taxes) piles on the goodies with a leather-fitted interior, 10-way power-adjustable driver's seat and dual-zone climate control with front and rear-seat ventilation. There's also a navigation system with eight-inch touch-screen display, rear camera with backup warning and a 550-watt Infinity sound system.

The Cadenza Premium adds a panoramic sunroof, power rear sunshade, heated steering wheel, front and rear heated seats with upgraded soft-leather covers, electronic parking brake and a power-tilt-and-telescoping steering wheel. Unfortunately, the Cadenza cannot be ordered with all-wheel-drive, but since it isn't offered on any Hyundai/Kia sedan, that's no surprise.

Fully optioned, the Cadenza brushes up against the $45,000 mark. That means it's now trespassing on territory staked out by the bigger rear-wheel-drive Hyundai Genesis as well as a number of other established luxury sedans. That probably won't bother Kia's buyers who will see the Cadenza as an honest, straightforward luxury car, minus the pretense and posturing of competing marques.

And that makes it a no-brainer in every sense of the word.

Fuel Economy

Pulling away from a stop, the powerplant balks at being pushed too hard, likely in the interests of maintaining its city fuel-consumption rating of 11.2 l/100 km and the highway figure of 7.4. When you're rolling, it gathers itself up quickly and pushes you back in the seat with ease.

Interior design

The interior design work is low-key, but is right in step with most luxury-oriented models. The hardware and trim are first-rate and the big and round gauges are easy to read. There's no shortage of dashboard and steering-wheel switches and buttons to fiddle with, but at least they're clearly marked.

25-year South American time warp

Autoknow. Revisiting Chile really highlights the contrast in cars, communication and comfort

GARRY SOWERBY
wheelbasemedia.com

I've been here before, but not exactly like this. It has been 25 years, so you can imagine how much has changed. Life is comfortable inside the new Hyundai Elantra. It's quiet, too, except for the flipping-map-page sounds that my wife Lisa Calvi is making. We are relaxed and joking about all the things we'll do on our escape from life in North America.

Traffic is speedy on the four-lane freeway and even though the cruise control is set precisely at the 120-km/h speed limit, almost every car on the road is passing us.

The last time I drove this Chilean section of the Pan American Highway was 25 years ago, and instead of motoring south to the Colchugua Valley in a nimble and sporty Elantra, it was north in a diesel pickup truck. It wasn't my loving wife beside me but burley Montana-based Rolling Stone magazine writer Tim Cahill.

The interior of the Elantra is neat and tidy. There's perfect instrumentation, my iPhone on the centre console and laptop computers in the back seat beside a Nikon digital camera.

Want to touch base with home? Simply pick up that iPhone and call, text or email. No need, we'll be in Santa Cruz, hub of the Colchugua Valley winery area, settled into the cozy Hotel TerraVina in an hour. Our biggest problem will be deciding whether to try the upscale Italian restaurant across the vineyard or the cute Peruvian one down the road for a late sunset dinner.

Twenty-five years ago when Tim and I were at this point in the first production 1988 GMC 3500 diesel Sierra pickup, things were different. We had driven non-stop for three days from Ushuaia on the Argentina side of Tierra del Fuego, about the same duration since Lisa and I arrived in Santiago.

The Sierra was filthy inside and out. Tired and wound tight with what lay ahead, we looked and smelled the part; bleary-eyed young men bent on setting a new Guinness record for the quickest time from the bottom to the top of the Americas. We were hoping to rendezvous with a container ship in Carthana, Columbia on day 11 of the quest. We had no iPhone, laptop computers or digital cameras because they did not exist. Texting, email, fax machines or a freeway Chilean sector of the Pan American Highway? Dream on.

"Take the Carrtera del Vino exit four kilometres past San Fernando, then it's about 45 minutes to the hotel," Lisa says, snapping me out of the daydream.

Driving Chilean secondary roads is like playing an arcade game. Traffic moves at a lively clip and tailgating seems a national sport as drivers prepare to pass. There are lumbering transport trucks, bicycles and farm equipment to avoid and road signs can be ambiguous, but the agile Elantra and I are one as we get into the rhythm of "el road."

"It keeps you on the defensive but driving here is fun, Lisa," I laugh while overtaking a massive Scania tractor-trailer creeping up a steep hill. Over the next week we slip into vacation mode. Life at Hotel TerraVina surrounded by a seemingly endless vineyard is relaxed. Awake with the sound of songbirds, breakfast mid-morning, lunch at a winery wraps up as late as 4:30 p.m. then dinner at about 10.

We drive an hour to the Pacific coast one afternoon, but Chile's built-in air conditioner — the Humboldt Current that pushes cold, nutrient-rich deep water onto its 4,000-kilometre coastline — keeps the coastal temperature 15 C, cooler than inland locales such as the Colchagua Valley.

A week in Chile's premium wine-making area tucked in the Andean foothills 220 kilometres south of the sprawling capital Santiago is like an all-inclusive holiday, indeed. However, rather than being trapped in the confines of a Caribbean or Mexican beach resort with throngs of North American vacationers, Colchagua Valley, with its meandering back roads, superb wineries and funky commercial hub, Santa Cruze, is a resort all its own.

On the 11th day, we load the Hyundai for the three-hour drive back to Santiago and our flight home. As we pull onto the Pan American freeway, my mind again drifts back 25 years.

On day 11 of the Pan American Challenge, Tim Cahill and I were approaching Carthana, Columbia, right on schedule. We had crossed Chile's Atacama Desert, avoided the Shining Path Maoist guerrilla insurgents in Peru, conquered Equador's mountain passes and been at gunpoint 21 times on the 60-hour run through Columbia. The GMC Sierra was crusted with road grime, our eyes bloodshot. The plan to rendezvous with the container ship to transport us through the Panama Canal around the roadless Dairen Gap was on track.

As I set the Elantra's cruise control for the highway, I look over at Lisa. She is tanned and relaxed as she checks her iPhone for mail. "There's a message here from the airline," she says. "Looks like the Business Class upgrades have come through." How times change.

Today, a new Hyundai Elantra is a pleasant and familiar road companion in Chile. ALL IMAGES WHEELBASE

When life gives you lemons, sell them

Autopilot. Gloomy writer Vonnegut's real-life tale of him selling Saabs in the '60s was a joy to read

AUTO PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

I just love it when a great author "goes automotive." Kurt Vonnegut does so on occasion in his 2005 collection of essays, A Man Without a Country, which I re-read last weekend.

It's dark stuff. He is very critical of the human race, and not too optimistic about our future, but he always delivers his news with such humour and elegant prose that you want him to keep going — keep telling us why we suck so much.

Consider this rant: "Evolution can go to hell as far as I am concerned. What a mistake we are. We have mortally wounded this sweet life-supporting planet — the only one in the whole Milky Way — with a century of transportation whoopee."

Ouch. I'm a deep practitioner of this kind of whoopee. So are a lot of other people.

But he kind of used to be one of us. Kind of. I didn't know Vonnegut used to be the owner and manager of an automobile dealership until I read his essay, I Used to be the Owner and Manager of an Automobile Dealership.

This was back in the 1960s, and he sold Saabs. He didn't think much of them.

"Unlike other cars, but like your lawn mower and outboard, it had a two-stroke rather than a four-stroke engine. So every time you filled your gas, you had to pour in a can of oil as well. For whatever reason, straight women did not want to do this."

Even if straight women did this, the oil and gas thing presented problems whenever you left your Saab parked for a length of time.

"The oil would separate from the gas and sink like molasses to the bottom of the tank," writes Vonnegut. "So when you started up again, you would lay down a smoke-screen like a destroyer in a navel engagement.

Author Kurt Vonnegut. CONTRIBUTED

"And I actually blacked out the whole town of Woods Hole at high noon that way, having left a Saab in the parking lot there for about a week. I am told old timers there still wonder out loud where all the smoke could have come from."

In all the essays in this book Vonnegut is either bemoaning what people have done or become, or joking about it, or explaining why jokes are necessary.

He believes humour and art are how a lot of us cope and/or rail against fear, noting that most great works of literature "are all about what a bummer it is to be a human being."

Kurt Vonnegut sold, and wrote about, two-stroke Saabs, like this early Saab 96. CONTRIBUTED

It's Vonnegut's genius to simultaneously make the reader feel bummed out about human beings, but also proud of being one at the same time.

Consider this excerpt about when he was a POW in Dresden during the Second World War: "While we were being bombed in Dresden, sitting in a cellar with our arms over our heads in case the ceiling fell, one soldier said as though he were a duchess in a mansion on a cold and rainy night, 'I wonder what the poor people are doing tonight.' Nobody laughed, but we were still all glad he said it."

Totting up the truth: Find your car's real cost

Driving force. Abacus at the ready, the actual cost of your vehicle includes the likes of maintenance, insurance and fuel

drive@metronews.ca

How much does a car cost? You may think it's just what you paid for it, but whether it's a new or used vehicle, it's actually far more than that.

"The true cost of a car includes not only the purchase price, but what it costs to keep and maintain it, and insure it, over the life of the car," says Phil Raby, a writer for MoneySense magazine. "There are many different ways to figure it out."

Raby suggests researching vehicles by using such resources as Consumer Reports, Lemon-Aid, and the non-profit Automobile Protection Association (APA). While reviews of new vehicles will give you an initial overview, it's important to look at long-term reports as a new model ages, to see if recurrent problems crop up.

Reliable cars will likely end up costing you less in the long run, Raby says. "Cars made by Japanese manufacturers like Honda or Toyota tend to cost more, but the general feeling is that they will cost less in repair bills," he says. "The more expensive car may be the better one in the long run, especially if you keep your car until you run it into the ground."

If you're considering a car, call your insurance company and see how much it will be to cover it. Factors that affect insurance include the car's initial cost, its depreciation, the price of collision repairs and replacement parts and even its theft rate.

Shop around for the best rates, including online quotes, to help reduce your costs.

Purchase interest is something many people don't factor in, and it can make a huge difference, especially if you're considering the extremely long financing terms that some automakers are offering. "The danger with an 84-month term is getting an 'upside-down' loan, where the value of the car is lower than the amount outstanding on it," Raby says, warning that if you have to sell the car during the loan period, you could still owe more than you will get for it. "If you can't afford to buy a car and pay it off in five years, then get a less-expensive car, rather than a 72- or 84-month loan," he adds.

Keep your eye on the bottom line, Raby says. "It's not just how cheap your monthly payment will be, but what you will end up paying in the end. You could buy a car for $20,000, but it could cost you $30,000 when it's all stretched out."

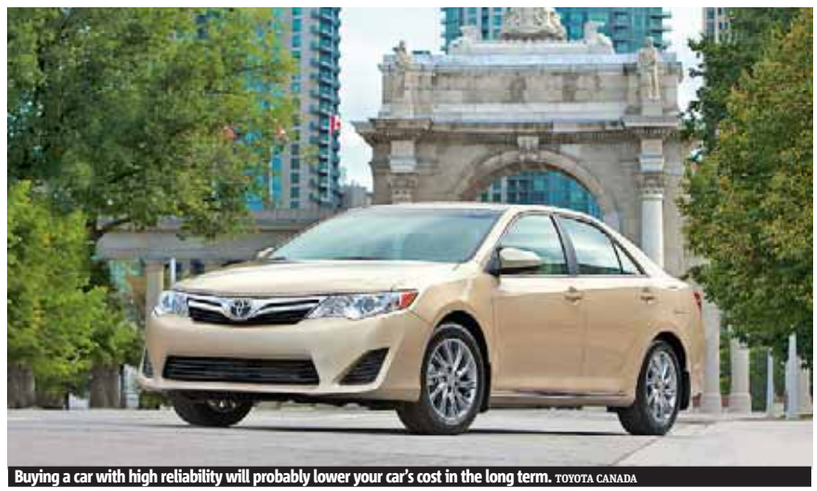
The real bottom line

"The true cost of a car includes not only the purchase price, but what it costs to keep and maintain it, and insure it, over the life of the car."

Phil Raby, a writer for MoneySense magazine

Tips

- Time is of the essence. It's always cheapest in the long run to fix problems as quickly as possible, since they will get worse and cost more as time goes on.
- Frugality. Be cautious about expensive add-ons when buying a new car, such as fabric treatment, window etching or rust protection. In most cases, you don't need it.
- Information. To view the risk ratings most insurance companies use, visit ibc.ca and click on "How Cars Measure Up."



Buying a car with high reliability will probably lower your car's cost in the long term. TOYOTA CANADA

Good things come in trees, Honda plants the seed

18,000. Automaker makes planting promise and teams up with Trees Ontario to achieve goal to help environment

Honda Canada has announced it will plant more than 18,000 trees across Canada, with the help of Trees Ontario.

For every Honda ATV and lawn care product sold between April 1, 2013 and July 31, 2013, a tree was purchased on behalf of Honda's customers. The Trees Ontario's Forest Recovery Canada (FRC) program will plant trees native to their chosen area nationwide.

Tree planting will take place this fall through to spring 2014 and will greatly contribute to the beautification of local communities.

"At Honda, our goal is to be a company that Canadians want to exist and we make every effort to ensure the preservation of the environment in all of our corporate activities. This campaign is a national initiative with local benefits and will contribute to the Canadian landscape long into the future," explains Jeff Stralak, senior manager of the motorcycle and power equipment division at Honda Canada Inc.

What is the FRC?

• Helping the ecosystem. Forest Recovery Canada (FRC) is a national tree-planting program, administered by Trees Ontario, dedicated to innovative and leading-edge forestry practices. Through the support of corporate partners and individual supporters, FRC works with an extensive network of tree planting organizations to enhance the health of Canada's ecosystems through scientifically-based forest restoration and forest management practices.

Campaign takes seed

"The Forest Recovery Canada program is a perfect fit and the 'One Honda. One Tree' campaign has far exceeded our expectations. Honda, along with our customers, associates and families, has helped plant more than 94,000 trees in Canada over the past seven years."

Jeff Stralak, Senior Manager, Motorcycle & Power Equipment Division, Honda Canada Inc.

"The Forest Recovery Canada program is a perfect fit and the 'One Honda. One Tree' campaign has far exceeded our expectations. Honda, along with our customers, associates and families, has helped plant more than 94,000 trees in Canada over the past seven years. "

"These new trees will contribute to the health and well-being of Canadians, from Victoria to St. John's," explains Rob Keen, the CEO of Trees Ontario.

"Honda Canada has become a strong supporter of the Forest Recovery Canada program and we applaud their customers' efforts who, through their purchases have contributed to increasing forest cover across the Canadian landscape."

The Cadillac of jackets

Clothing made from recycled materials continues to catch on as a more environmentally responsible alternative to buying new. Oakland, Calif.-based Platinum Dirt creates clothing and accessories sourced from the leather seat covers of decommissioned automobiles. For example, the company's line of VIN Jackets (so called because the Vehicle Identification plate from the donated car is attached to the product) is made from the stuff. As you can imagine, no two jackets (starting at about US $1,850) are alike, but all are painstakingly tailored and include stitched-in brocade (silk) linings. The current inventory includes repurposed leather from Cadillacs, Lincolns, and Mercedes-Benzes. View Platinum Dirt's inventory at platinumdirt.com.

Ring finger power

This item is for the gearhead in your life who seems to have everything related to his or her obsession. Cruzin' World's Web site has a selection of rings that feature hotrod V8 engine designs. The collection includes both carbureted and fuel-injected Chevrolet engines along with a few supercharged - or "blown" - V8s. All rings are made of sterling sliver with added brass for the valve covers, carburetors and supercharger scoop. Prices range from US $350-$450, depending on the intricacy of the design. Check them out at cruzinworld.com.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You can charm the birds out of the trees today, but your long-term interests would be better served if you charm a wage rise out of your boss. Make sure you know your own value, and make sure you get it.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
If you let others make decisions for you today, their efforts are likely to fall short of what you require. Whatever tasks come your way, do them yourself.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
The challenges coming your way may be tough but you have what it takes to make the best of them, by getting the best from yourself.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
If you need to enlist other people's help then speak up. As Venus moves into the most dynamic area of your chart, you will find ways to bring your charisma and can-do spirit together. It's a winning combination.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Even Leos find the going tough sometimes and if you have a problem of some kind today, you must ask for help. The longer you pretend everything is going fine, the bigger the fall-out when it all gets too much.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You have a way with words but sometimes you say too much or speak in too aggressive a tone. With Venus moving into the communications area of your chart today that isn't a problem though.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You need to find a way to strike a better balance between work and family issues. If you know you won't be able to meet certain obligations then say so.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Petty victories are just that — petty. As of today, you must raise your sights and focus only on battles that are worthy of your talents. One major battle won is worth a thousand skirmishes of no consequence.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You may have to do something you don't much enjoy but if you adopt the right attitude and do a good job, you may be surprised how rewarding it is.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Confidence is your most potent weapon and if you act as if nothing can possibly go wrong, today most likely nothing will. The universe has a way of rewarding those who take a carefree, can-do attitude to life.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Your prospects are getting better and with values planet Venus moving into the career area of your chart today, the powers that be will look on you kindly. If you have a dream, let the world know.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
This should be a wonderful time, especially if you are on the move. Whether you travel to the far side of the Earth or just down the road to see a friend, love and laughter will go with you every step of the way. SALLY BROMPTON
